Development made in Hamilton

Since 2007 for players aged 8 to 18 years of age, with a focus on accelerated technical skills and development of youth competitive baseball players in a fun, constructive and positive environment.

Players can choose to continue their baseball careers at the post-secondary level.

Along with the Junior Cardinals, players can play year round under one umbrella. Players can spend their summers playing for the Hamilton Junior IBL Cardinals, their Falls and Springs playing for the McMaster Marauders and eventually graduate to the Senior IBL Cardinals - all while training at the same facilities.

Quality baseball in Hamilton dates back to the PONY league of the late 1930s when Hamilton was the Minor League affiliate for the National League's St. Louis Cardinals.

Today the Hamilton Cardinals remains the 2nd oldest sports team in Hamilton

With the grass roots development along the way, baseball in Hamilton will reach new heights and a premium student athlete experience.
